

ABSTRACT

5 A method of precisely determining velocity of propagation and the location of a fault on an electric transmission line, using a system of high frequency transmitter and receiver combinations to monitor and detect high frequency bursts produced by the transmitters and by faults, including memory and analysis capability to store and analyze high 10 frequency data before and after a detected fault.

15

20

25

30